Meet Johnathan, 2016 Boys & Girls Clubs of the Great Lakes Bay Region Youth of the Year

Boys & Girls Clubs of the Great Lakes Bay Region is proud to recognize Johnathan H. as Youth of the Year for 2016! Johnathan is 17 years old and has attended his Saginaw Unit for 11 consecutive years, where he has been an outstanding Club member and an inspiring mentor to his peers.

Johnathan's story does not begin happily. At age 7, he unknowingly followed his cousin into a "trap house", which several young men were using to store guns and drugs. It was that day that he was initiated into their gang. His initiation consisted of all of the men beating him until he could barely stand. Through his involvement in the gang, he learned how to hot-wire cars, steal guns, and deal (and partake in) drugs. He was an alcoholic by the age of 9.

Johnathan's mother died of sickle cell anemia in March of 2010, shortly before his younger brother's third birthday. It was then that his father abandoned them for a life of hard drug use, and the children were left to be raised by their grandparents.

Throughout all of this turmoil, Johnathan was an active member of the Saginaw Boys & Girls Club (now the Saginaw Unit of Boys & Girls Clubs of the Great Lakes Bay Region). One day, he was playing basketball in the gym, and another member tripped him. This caused Johnathan to spiral into a rage, and it was up to our Unit Director, Ray Garcia, to calm him down.

According to Johnathan, it was in that moment that he started reflecting on his life and how he had gotten to where he was. Thanks to support from his family and the staff at the Clubs, he was able to get out of the gang and start doing something more with his life. According to Johnathan, Mr. Ray played an important role in keeping him on track.

Every day, he told him that, if he didn't stay busy with something good, something bad would surely find him. These words motivated Johnathan to seek better opportunities for himself. With Mr. Ray's help, Johnathan got a job with the DNR and started leading activities in the Triple Play and Healthy Habits programs at the Club. Now, he talks with members there about gang involvement, violence, and drugs in an effort to keep them from pursuing that lifestyle.

Johnathan's best friend was shot off his bicycle at age 15. He knows that, had he continued down the path he was on, that could have easily been him. We are grateful for Johnathan's wisdom, and for his testimony to the impact that Boys & Girls Clubs can have on children in our community. The Boys & Girls Clubs of the Great Lakes Bay Region would like to congratulate Johnathan on all his hard work and wish him good luck at the State Youth of the Year Competition in April!

In honor of Women's History Month, who has been the biggest female role model in your life and why?

The most influential person in my life is my mother. She is strong and works so hard to achieve her dreams. She is a role model for the kind of person I hope to be as I grow and create a life for myself.

Kolby Holden Community Member

My biggest female role models have been my mom and my aunt. They are both strong women who have modeled for me what it means to be a good person and go after my dreams. Without their love and support, I wouldn't be the person that I am today.

Michigan residents urged to learn about risk for hereditary cancers caused by Lynch syndrome

LANSING, Mich. – As part of the awareness efforts for Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month, Gov. Rick Snyder and the Michigan Department of Health and Human Services (MDHHS) are recognizing March 19-25, 2017 as Lynch Syndrome Awareness Week. Michigan residents are urged to ask their health care providers about Lynch syndrome (LS) and to discuss their personal family history of colorectal cancer.

LS is the most common inherited disorder that increases a person's risk of developing colorectal cancer. It is not a rare disorder – one in every 300-400 Americans, and one in 33 colorectal cancer patients have LS. Because LS is underdiagnosed, many may not know that they have the condition.

"Individuals with Lynch syndrome have up to 40-80 percent risk of developing colorectal cancer, much higher than the six percent risk in the general population. First-degree relatives of individuals with Lynch syndrome have a 50 percent chance of inheriting the condition as well," said Dr. Eden Wells, chief medical executive of MDHHS. "Knowing that you have a higher risk of colorectal and other cancers due to LS can prompt your doctor to recommend earlier and more frequent cancer screening, which may help diagnose the disease early and potentially save your life."

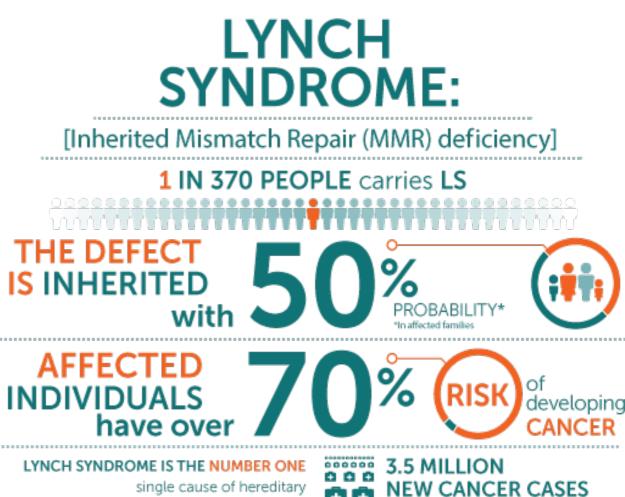

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recommends that all newly-diagnosed colorectal cancer patients should be screened for LS. Diagnosis of LS is important for individuals with colorectal cancer due to higher risks of other cancers as LS increases the risks of developing cancers of the endometrium, ovaries, pancreas, urinary tract, skin, and brain. Members of a family with LS may be diagnosed with different types of cancer. It is therefore very important for Michigan residents to talk to their health care providers about their family's cancer history, particularly if cancer was diagnosed before age 50.

According to Dr. Julie Zenger Hain, Co-Chair of the Michigan Cancer Genetics Alliance (MCGA) and Director of Medical Genetics at Beaumont Hospital-Dearborn, "An early age of onset of cancer (before 50 years of age) is one of the warning signs that could indicate the presence of a hereditary cancer syndrome. Genetic counseling and hereditary colorectal cancer genetic testing are important steps to consider to identify an individual's and their family's cancer risk."

MDHHS is working to achieve the Healthy People 2020 objective of increasing the number of newly-diagnosed colorectal cancer patients who receive genetic screening for LS. It is estimated that 20,000-35,000 Michigan residents have LS, and the majority (98 percent) have not been screened and are not even aware of such testing.

To learn more about hereditary cancers, visit www.michigan.gov/hereditarycancer. A directory of cancer genetic counseling clinics in Michigan maintained by the MCGA can be found at https:// migrc.org/Library/MCGA/MCGADirectory.html.

Understanding Autism Spectrum Disorder

By Heather Beson, Autism Program Supervisor - SCCMHA

NATIONAL AUTISM AWARENESS MONTH

April is National Autism Awareness Month! Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD) and autism is a group of complex disorders of brain development. These disorders are characterized, in varying degrees by difficulties in social interactions, verbal and nonverbal communication, and restricted and repetitive behaviors. It causes severe and longlasting impairments in several areas of typical child development. As the name implies, it is a "spectrum" and no two individuals with ASD look alike with symptoms varying in degree of severity from mild to severe. Recent statistics from the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) indicate around 1 in 68 individuals are diagnosed with ASD, with it being found more common in boys with 1 out of 42 boys and 1 and 189 girls. Saginaw County Community Mental Health Authority (SCCMHA) has a program for individuals diagnosed with the disorder up to age 21.

For children with ASD, difficulties in social interactions and communication manifest themselves in a variety of ways. The deficits listed below coupled with restricted and repetitive behaviors make up the ASD disorder:

- Some individuals display poor eye contact
- During infancy and young childhood there is often a lack of wanting to be held, stiffening their bodies in reaction to touch.

- Individuals may also not respond to smiles or facial expressions nor show them.
- Frequently looking at objects others are pointing to doesn't occur, nor will individuals want others to look at objects they are looking at.
- There is a lack of initiating activities with others.
- They may lack the ability to judge appropriate reactions in social situations and may not feel anxiety around strangers, even getting in personal space.
- "Theory of mind" or the ability to perceive what others are thinking or feeling is missing.
- Difficulty with normal back and forth conversations often occurs.
- There is an absence of interest in peers. Individuals may have difficulty making and keeping friends.

Restricted and repetitive behaviors, the other hallmark of ASD, can look very different in each individual. People may behave in "odd" ways that are repetitive. There is a preoccupation with unusual objects or "normal" objects. Individuals may rock, spin, sway, twirl fingers, or flap hands. Often obsessed with a few activities, they do them repeatedly. In children, they can be observed playing with parts of a toy rather than the whole toy. There may be a lack of fear or not crying in reaction to pain. Frequently, there is a sensitivity or non-sensitivity to smells, sounds, lights, textures, and touch. Individuals may have unusual use of vision or gaze. Often there is also an inflexible adherence to routines.

In the past it was thought there was no treatment for the disorder, but advances in treatment have proven that the condition can be halted and some individuals can live lives like their typically developing peers. SCCMHA offers an evidenced based treatment proven to be effective for children with ASD called Applied Behavior Analysis (ABA). This benefit is available for individuals up to the day before their 21st birthday. ABA is the design, implementation, and evaluation of environmental modifications to produce socially significant improvement in human behavior. It includes direct observations, measurement, and functional analysis of the relations between environment and behavior. Other treatments available include Speech Therapy, Occupational Therapy, and Physical Therapy for those that have medical necessity. With proper treatment and commitment to therapy(s), families can anticipate individuals to progress and improve. Individuals with ASD can anticipate a future full of hopes and dreams, living a life like everyone else.

For more information on ASD and treatments provided by Saginaw County Community Mental Health Authority, visit our website at www.sccmha. org.

How to Build Your Retirement Savings the Easy Way

Kim Gardey, CFP, Founder and Chairman, Gardey Financial Advisors www.gardey.com employer someone offered to deposit money into your retirement account every payday, would you turn them down? Well, maybe someone has already made that offer.

If your offers a 401(k) retirement account, chances are good that as part of the plan, they will match a portion of your contribution. For example, a 401(k) plan might call for an employer to contribute 50 cents for each dollar that a participating employee chooses to contribute. This is free money!

Obviously, if someone is not contributing to this plan, they are missing out on the free money.

There are other advantages that accompany this free money:

- The employer's contribution is not taxed until it is withdrawn following retirement.
- The income earned on the employer's contribution throughout your working life is also not taxed until after retirement.
- You are able to take advantage of the magic of compounding.

Let's look at a specific example to see more clearly the benefit of this free money to your retirement. Suppose your employer is depositing $50 each month into your 401(k) plan. Here is what those contributions along with income earned at 7% would total over

Years of Contribution	Total Accumulation (including income earned)
10	$8,600
20	$25,000
30	$58,800

various time periods:

This amount is above and beyond the contributions you, yourself, have made to your account.

By participating in your employer 401(k) plan, you have helped build your retirement plan the easy way.

Roethke House Seeks Additional Board Members

This is the best time of year to recruit board members with so many Roethke summer activities needing volunteers and offering opportunities to know us before beginning Roethke work. It's a "date before marriage" plan.

We are a working board with no paid staff. Every board member plays an important role in the success of Roethke historic house museum. We hold board meetings on 4th Tuesday of every month at 6:00 pm.

In order to help us grow, we especially need board members knowledgeable in fundraising, membership, marketing, graphic arts, and technology. We need financial expertise in overseeing grant writing and reporting. Our work includes cataloging artifacts, running an office, mailing to enlarge our base, giving historic house tours, preparing for annual birthday party and annual meeting, and hosting summer activities which include literary picnics and a language arts camp for early elementary children based on small group tutoring.

Plus we have on-going needs for volunteers to help prepare for house events, weed and water gardens, organize the office, assist as librarians, and help with house repairs.

We are entering our 19th year since securing nonprofit foundation status (501c3). It will be our 17th literary picnic series In a Poet's Backyard whereby local writers typically present their books, read excerpts, and discuss their writing process with catered meals from local restaurants. It will be our 7th July for Language Arts Review Camp Child on Top of a Greenhouse where we offer morning and afternoon two hour sessions to early elementary students. Language Camp celebrates the reading and writing of Roethke and our local community as resources for learning and promotes this premise: If children believe in themselves and their communities, there is no end to what they can achieve!

Saginaw County Chamber of Commerce joins 'Good Jobs for Michigan' effort

Michigan must have additional economic development incentive tools to ensure state and communities can attract good-paying jobs

SAGINAW, Mich. – The Saginaw County Chamber of Commerce and its hundreds of members across the Saginaw Valley region on Monday, March 28, 2017, threw its support behind the Good Jobs for Michigan coalition. The coalition supports legislation designed to grow more good-paying jobs statewide and not be left on the sidelines behind other states, like Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky, South Carolina and more.

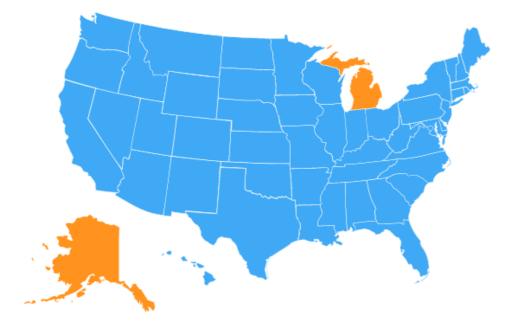

"This is a jobs issue. We can't afford to let other states lure away businesses that should be growing in or coming to Saginaw, Frankemuth, or other communities across our region and Michigan," said Bob Van Deventer, president/CEO of the Saginaw County Chamber of Commerce. "This legislation will help us compete and win more good jobs for our workers and families. It will help grow our economy, bolstering our neighborhoods, communities, schools and infrastructure to ensure a strong quality of life for all. We urge our lawmakers to pass this critical jobs package."

The Good Jobs for Michigan legislation is comprised of Senate Bills 242, 243 and 244. The bills would allow simple, transparent and predictable incentives to fill critical gaps in Michigan's business attraction toolkit, enabling the state to compete and secure projects of 250 and 500+ jobs. Numerous safeguards are built into the legislation to ensure that no incentives are paid until minimum jobs and wage thresholds are met and verified, and that projects demonstrate a positive fiscal impact to the state.

The Saginaw County Chamber of Commerce, based in Saginaw, Michigan, is committed to building healthy organizations and communities by following its core strategies of communicate, connect and influence to support local business success.

For more information about the Good Jobs for Michigan legislation and full list of coalition partners, visit: www.goodjobsformichigan.com.

Michigan and Alaska are the only two states with both a corporate income tax and ZERO tax credits to attract new jobs and large-scale economic development.

FUNDRAISING GOOD TIMES

Gifts for Gifts? What is Your Practice?

As a donor, what do you want in return for your gift? A letter? Public recognition? Opportunities to meet with like-minded people? Access to the organization's leadership? A plaque? A pen? Your family's name on a building?

As an organization, what do you offer to your donors as a way of thanking them for supporting your work? Do you have a policy that meets the diverse tangible and intangible needs and wants of your donors and prospective donors? Do you offer meaningful recognition to donors at all levels?

There are many schools of thought on this topic. Some are held by donors, others are organizational policy. Some of these are articulated and well defined. Some are unconscious, unspoken or unaddressed.

Here are two exaggerated examples. One is "I believe in the vision and what you are doing and your impact. That is enough. Spend your money and time on your mission and not on me."

Another is "I always expect to be acknowledged and thanked for my giving. I want to know that my gift means something to you."

Neither is better. And, there are as many variations on these themes as there are donors.

In the first example, we remind organizations that this request is not an invitation to ignore a donor, neglect to thank him or her, or to not encourage involvement. In the second example, we remind our clients that seeking to raise one's public profile, honor a family member, or publicize one's business is not a negative motivation for giving. Like altruism it is one of many motivations and should be respected.

As a donor, what are your expectations? What is important to you? Do you share your expectations with the organizations you give to? For example, with an annual gift do you send an email with your request for anonymity, or your request to visit the organization and learn more about its work? As a major donor, do you let the organization's representative know that you want to honor your mother with her name on a building and that this is important to your family? Do you ask for a letter detailing the terms related to your gift?

As an organization, have you had a conversation about what types of donor recognition are aligned with your mission and vision? Have you talked with a sample of your donors to learn what is important to them? Have you adopted policies? Are they implemented in a consistent and timely way?

Regardless of policy, here are a few things to consider as it relates to acknowledgement. Take the time to thank your donors and personally acknowledge their giving and how it affects your ability to serve, educate and advocate. When possible, send a handwritten note. Send it today, not six months later.

At the end of the day donor acknowledgement is about understanding and respecting the diversity of reasons that drive people's giving and how they want to be recognized. It is an important part of the fundraising process.

EDUCATION

Perfect score: 100% of CMU med students secure residencies

All 62 students from first class placed in residencies; half to stay in Michigan

Every graduating medical student in the nation has today marked as Match Day. It takes place on the same day, at the same time, at every medical school. It is the day future doctors learn if and where they will do their residency training.

Central Michigan University's College of Medicine today experienced its first-ever Match Day, and each of its first class of doctors-to-be — all 62 of them — obtained placements. Nearly half — 47 percent — were matched to residency programs in Michigan.

This 100 percent placement is especially notable because the number of medical students far exceeds the number of U.S. residencies. In 2016 for example, more than 10,000 students went unmatched.

"I am excited for my match and for all of my classmates, as everyone matched today," Kush Sharma, a Kalamazoo native, said. "Having been a part of this small of a class, we are like a family."

Sharma was matched with Grand Rapids Medical Education Partners in vascular surgery.

Match Day is the medical school version of March Madness. A computerized mathematical algorithm is used by the National Resident Matching Program to align the specialty and location preferences of medical students with the preferences of program directors to fill positions at U.S. teaching hospitals.

It's a dramatic event, with embargoed match information released to students in sealed envelopes opened simultaneously across the nation at 11:59 a.m. EST."Today is a momentous event in the history of our university and our college. This is our inaugural class, and the very first Match Day experienced by our faculty, staff and students," College of Medicine Dean Dr. George E. Kikano said. "It also is an exciting day for the state, because of our unique mission focused on preparing physicians to serve in rural and medically underserved regions of Michigan.

"CMU is changing the face of health care in the state, in this moment."

The 62 students in CMU's inaugural class matched in the following areas:

- emergency medicine 19 percent;
- internal medicine 18 percent;
- family medicine 11 percent;
- psychiatry 8 percent;
- pediatrics, anesthesiology, obstetrics/gynecology and general surgery – 24 percent; and
- the remaining 20 percent in various other specialties.

"These results mean the mission of the CMU College of Medicine is more than a promise," said Dr. Steve Vance, associate dean of clinical education. "Our mission is now a reality. After years of hard work and a match application process that began last fall, these students are about to discover their roles in our health care system. I'm incredibly proud of this class."

Kikano said CMU is breaking ground in addressing the shortage of physicians in Michigan and the need for quality health care. He notes that CMU students learn the science of medicine while also learning to put the patient first — to consider the whole patient in the settings of their individual communities.

"I'm grateful to our outstanding faculty, our supportive staff, and our incredible clinical partners throughout Michigan who help provide outstanding educational experiences for these students," Kikano said. "Today is a day to celebrate being one step closer to reducing health disparities and improving access to high-quality health care in the state."

"This day means I have a future. I get to train and hopefully make my mom and dad proud," Yasha Parikh, an Okemos native said.

Parikh was matched at Mount Auburn Hospital, a Harvard Medical School-affiliated hospital in Cambridge, Massachusetts. She is the 10th radiologist in her family. Her father, Samir Parikh, is a radiologist with Henry Ford Allegiance Health in Jackson. Her mother, Smruti Parikh, is a radiologist in cardiovascular private practice in Okemos. The National Resident Matching Program expects the 2017 match to be the largest in history, exceeding the more than 42,000 applicants who registered for the 2016 match and the more than 4,800 residency programs at institutions across the country that offered more than 30,000 positions last year.

Match Day with CMU's clinical partners

CMU Medical Education Partners, in partnership with the CMU College of Medicine, focused on the opposite end of the matching process, securing residents for its five residency programs to perform specialty training in Saginaw for the next three to four years. CMEP (formerly Synergy Medical Education Alliance) was formed in 1968 to provide undergraduate, resident and physician clinical training. It partnered with the College of Medicine in 2012.

"We have a total of 32 applicants matching in our programs this year," said Dr. Mary Jo Wagner, CMU Medical Education Partners' director of graduate medical education. "We'll have four new residents in the psychiatry program, four in OB/GYN, six in family medicine, eight in internal medicine, and 10 in emergency medicine. One of our goals for these programs is that many of these new doctors choose to stay in our community after they finish their training."

The CMU College of Medicine, established in 2009, has a mission to improve access to high-quality health care in Michigan, especially in rural and medically underserved regions. It was created to address an anticipated shortage of 4,000 to 6,000 physicians in Michigan by 2020. Data released this week by the Association of American Medical Colleges cites an anticipated shortage between 41,000 and 105,000 doctors throughout the U.S. over the next decade.

STARS SYSU Nightline Pilot Route Launches

Through a partnership with Saginaw Valley State University (SVSU), the Kochville DDA, and local businesses, the Saginaw Transit Authority (STARS) launches the SVSU Nightline bus route pilot this week.

STARS Site Manager Glenn Steffens today announced the pilot project, which is aimed at providing night time transportation to SVSU students as well as other Saginaw residents. Regarding the pilot, Steffens said, "This route will help bring needed access to local venues and provide students with free transportation to get as far as Old Town safely. STARS currently doesn't operate at night, so I see this as a much-needed step in the direction of STARS taking on later service hours. The feedback so far has been great — and we haven't even started yet."

The STARS SVSU Nightline will run beginning 9pm until 3am on Thursday through Saturday night for four weekends: March 23-25, March 30-April 1, April 6-8, and April 20-22 (No Service Easter Weekend). The bus fare is $1.50 for the general public, but SVSU Students ride for free with a valid Student ID. "If you are an SVSU student and want to get out to the City, then the Nightline is for you. If you're a resident and want transportation from Old Town to the Tittabawassee corridor and back, or happen to live along the route on Bay Road and would like to get out for a movie or dinner, then the Nightline is for you. This pilot route is about safe transportation at night. It's about bringing local businesses foot traffic. And it's about a new way of funding much-needed service through public/public and public/private partnerships," said Steffens.

The Nightline bus will depart SVSU at the top of every hour beginning at 9pm, then stopping by a number of hotels and restaurants on the Tittabawassee corridor, the Fashion Square Cinema, Stardust Lanes, ending at the Michigan/Hamilton area at the bottom of the hour. The bus will then head back to SVSU along the same path. The last dropoff will be at SVSU at 3am. "It was amazing to hear from so many SVSU students that had never even been to the City," said Steffens, adding, "It's our hope that the Nightline will breathe even more energy into the city of Saginaw, SVSU, and, of course, STARS." A flyer for the route can be found at https://pbs.twimg.com/media/C7DP0WhWcAA0X9u.jpg.

Saginaw County Chamber of Commerce supports "YES" vote on Saginaw Public School District Millage Renewal on Tuesday, May 2, 2017

Saginaw, Mich – On Tuesday, May 2, 2017, the residents of Saginaw, Zilwaukee, Buena Vista and Kochville Township (all municipalities within the Saginaw Public School District) will go to the polls to vote on a ballot proposal to renew the 19-mil non-homestead millage for Saginaw Public School District.

If passed, the millage will allow the Saginaw Public School District to collect perpupil funding for the students absorbed when the Buena Vista School District was dissolved. Since that time, the Saginaw Public Schools absorbed students from the BV School District but there was no legal authority to collect the non-homestead taxes.

"Passing this millage request simply allows the Saginaw Public School District to collect non-homestead taxes paid by business, in order to cover the costs of the additional students previously attending Buena Vista Public Schools", said Saginaw County Chamber President & CEO, Bob VanDeventer. "The businesses in Saginaw County support the school district. They recognize that this millage must pass in order to authorize the Saginaw Public School District to collect those tax dollars."

Nexteer Executive Director, Global Corporate Affairs, Luis Canales said that "it is important that this millage vote passes. The Saginaw Public Schools provide educational services to these additional students and the funding needs to follow. Nexteer has been a willing partner in supporting public schools and will continue to support public education in Saginaw."

The 28-member Board of Directors for the Saginaw County Chamber of Commerce overwhelmingly supported passage of this millage.

Meet Marcelle Smith

Even though he humbly says, "I am still Marcelle," some would argue that Marcelle Smith's life has been anything but average.

Smith, at the age of 31, has experienced life as a PK (Preacher's Kid) and TK (Teacher's Kid), an account executive for a professional baseball team and now as the Executive Minister at one of Saginaw's oldest houses of worship, Mt. Olive Institutional Missionary Baptist Church, 1114 N. 6th Street.

Smith, the son of Mt. Olive Pastor Dr. Marvin T. and First Lady Omie Anderson-Smith, was born in Shreveport, Louisiana. He received his primary schooling in Saginaw, graduating in 2004 with honors from Arthur Hill High School. He went on to attend Florida A&M University as a Presidential Scholar, where he graduated magna cum laude with bachelor's and masters degrees in business administration and later a master's of divinity degree from Vanderbilt University.

As the son of a prominent local preacher and a public school teacher, Smith admits that growing up in Saginaw had its challenges.

EARLY DISCIPLINE LEADS TO OPPORTUNITY

"There was a lot of discipline," he recalls.

"Growing up, I did not enjoy the discipline. It seemed like I was always at church and doing homework – from school and from my mother – when I wasn't participating in sports. However, once I got to college, I realized how much I appreciated and continue to appreciate the discipline my parents instilled in me by their expectations and example."

Upon completing his degree at Florida A & M, Smith returned to Saginaw and worked as a procurement specialist for Saginaw Future, Inc. He then served as an account executive for the Great Lakes Loons professional baseball team. Then it happened.

CALLING

"I was called to full-time ministry in the spring of 2011," he said. "I was working for the Great Lakes Loons in Midland. I was staying with my parents and youngest sister at the time, but I would not see them much. I would get up for work after they were gone to work and school, then return home after they had gone to bed.

"Desiring a family myself, I knew I could not continue living that lifestyle long-term. I was missing church on Sunday and Wednesday Bible Study. As much as I was enjoying my job and as much as I loved sports, I knew that it was wrong for me to be spending time at a baseball game as opposed to with God and God's people.

"I started praying and reading a book that my dad encouraged me to read years before entitled Ordering Your Private World by Gordon MacDonald. Through prayer and prayerfully reading that book, it became crystal clear to me that I was called to full-time ministry, including God directing me to attend Vanderbilt University's Divinity School."

JOURNEY

Shortly after completing his studies at Vanderbilt, Smith began to put God's plan in action, first serving as an assistant at Mt. Zion Baptist Church in Nashville, TN and then as a special assistant at Triumph Church in Detroit.

Today, his journey continues. As Executive Minister at Mt. Olive, he handles the church's administrative duties, including managing staff, the building and serving as the contact person for ministry leaders. In addition, he conducts hospital and school visitations with and/or on behalf of Pastor Smith. He is also the primary bible study teacher when Pastor Smith is absent.

So far, Marcelle says that his evolving role at Mt. Olive has been rewarding. The relationships that he formed and lessons that he gained growing up in the church that he now helps to lead, have been rewarding and continue to be great.

"To pretend like there are no pre-existing relationships and experiences would be a disservice to all," he observed.

"For the most part, my close friends remain close friends. They understand the changes I have decided to make. They also respect them, even when they do not understand or agree with the changes. They are as supportive of me now as they were when we met, whether that was in high school, college, the Kudos or church. With church elders, some treat me the same, some treat me different, and with some, it is a mixture of both. And I would not have it any other way. I am still Marcelle."

ADVICE

Pastor Marvin T. Smith, who was called to preach the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ in 1990, said that he advises the following to all young preachers, including his son:

"I encourage all preachers to understand that they belong to God. It is God's business as to what He chooses to do with each preacher, with or without that preacher's consent. Second, God rewards faithfulness. As the preacher lives for God, God fulfills the needs of the preacher and their family. Last, God uses the preacher to serve His people. The preacher's worship of God manifests itself in a number of ways. Serving God's people as preacher, teacher, counselor and so forth are all ways of the outworking of the preacher's worship, dedication, and faithfulness of God."

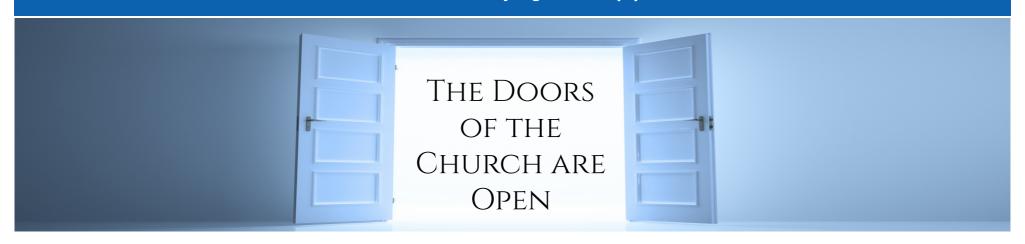

TODAY AND TOMORROW

Marcelle said that he remains positive about Saginaw and would like the church to be actively involved in improving the quality of life here.

"I love Saginaw," he says. "When I read or hear negative comments about Saginaw, it bothers me at my core. I believe God wants me to apply His Word in the City of Saginaw as those ministers before me have done. There are two passages, among many others, that be used to illustrate what I believe Saginaw can be: Luke 4:18-19 and Matthew 25:31-46. In a nutshell, Saginaw should be a place where everyone's needs are met, for that is God's will. I believe as a minister of the Gospel, the church should lead the way in accomplishing this goal."

Marcelle is the oldest child of Dr. Marvin T. and Mrs. Omie Anderson-Smith. He is the proud brother of Marche' and MaKenzie and the proud father of Josiah Timothy Smith.

Corinthian Church

Rev. Roy L. Manning and his wife, Beatrice, have served as leaders of Corinthian Missionary Baptist Church in Saginaw since 1992.

Over the years, the couple has facilitated several activities and fundraising events to further the church's mission and enhance the community including several building renovations to better serve their members.

In 1968, Roy Manning started his career in teaching where he taught math, health and business at Central Middle School in Saginaw. In 1982 he became assistant principal. His wife, Beatrice Manning was also a teacher and retired after 30 years from Webber Middle School in Saginaw. They both retired in 2002 to become full time ministers.

Corinthian Missionary Baptist Church is located at 104 S. 10th in Saginaw and their doors are open to all who wish to attend!

From Here, To There: Mt. Olive Institutional Missionary Baptist Church

In 1932, a small group of people organized a club known as the Busy Bees. Mrs. Leroy Lyons was the first president of this club. It was out of this group that the Mt. Olive Baptist Church was formed on February 27, 1933, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Gills. There were thirtytwo people who became charter members of the church. Some of the early members were Deacon George McCorey, Brother Leroy Lyons, Sister Silvellia Gills, Sister Opel Rodgers, Sister Elnora Buchanan and Brother Wilbur Gills.

The Rev. James Arnold was the moderator of the Recognition Council. The Rev. F.C. Jones and Rev. Epps were also members of the Council. Rev. Matthew Toomey became the first Pastor of the Church. He served for a period of four years from 1933-1937. Reverend Toomey added many souls to the congregation under his leadership.

In 1938, the Rev. W.G. Wilson was extended a call from the church. He came and served faithfully for two years. The church progressed under his administration. Reverend Wilson resigned because of illness.

The First corporate of this church was as follows: Brother Felix Weathers, Chairman of the Deacon Board; Brother George McCorey, Chairman of the Trustee Board; Brother J.W. Irby, Superintendent of Sunday School; Brother Willie Rodgers, Treasurer, Sister Henretta Woods, Sister Silvellia Gills, Secretary; SisterKatie Lee, Mission President; Sister Mary McCorey, Choir President; Sister Opel Riders, Usher Board President; Sister Lily Jefferies, President of the Mothers' Board.

The Rev. O.C. Thomas succeeded Rev. Wilson in 1941 and was instrumental in the construction of the first church building in the present location. This building was completely destroyed by fire in 1944. Rev. E.L. Todd served as interim Pastor for a few Months after Rev. Thomas Resigned. Rev. R.B. Bradley was called to the pastorate of this church and served until May of 1958. Under the leadership of Rev. Bradley, the church grew rapidly spiritually, numerically and financially. The building was enlarged; a nursery, choir loft, pastor's study, and the finance room were added. Parking space and the house next to the church were purchased and paid in full.

The Rev. James Paris Wilson was called to the pastorate of this church in October, 1958. A native of Memphis, TN Pastor Wilson came to us from Third Baptist Church in Detroit, Michigan. He was a 1942 Graduate of Wesleyan University in Delaware, Ohio and Payne Theological Seminary in Wilberforce, Ohio.

Under Pastor Wilson's leadership, the church underwent several major renovations and the membership grew to over 500 members. In 1962, ground was broken for a $135,000 addition, which included the educational wing consisting of 20 classrooms and a basketball court. A major renovation was completed in 1969. The nave of the church was enlarged and additional classrooms were added in the basement area and the Pastor's study was erected.

Thirteen auxillaries were active in supporting and organizing an array of special projects throughout the year. The congregation also was a major supporter of projects sponsored by the Wolverine State Baptist Convention.

In 1990, under Pastor Wilson's leadership, Mt. Olive dedicated its church annex, now known as the J.P. Wilson Fellowship Hall, on the ground level. The new fellowship hall is barrier free, with easy access to classrooms and sanctuary. The facility was constructed by MCS Construction Company and financed debt-free by the loyal membership through tithing and liberal offerings at a total cost of $343,648.

In 1993, after the retirement of Dr. Wilson, an associate minister of Mt. Olive, Rev. Eddie J. Williams consented to serve as interim Pastor.

Continue from PG 38, Mt. Olive

Rev. Williams had been a faithful member and helper to Dr. Wilson and the entire congregation. He was responsible for maintaining the church programs that were in place. Dedicated to the call of Christ, Rev. Williams served the Mt. Olive congregation with a humble spirit until the Rev. Nile E. Smith, Jr., received the call to Pastor Mt. Olive in 1994. He was the former pastor of College Grove Baptist Church in Texarkana, Arkansas. Pastor Smith served here as pastor for two years. During those two years, Mt. Olive continued to be a leading congregation in the city, state and nation among National Baptists.

Again, the Rev. Eddie Williams was asked to serve as interim pastor. He readily agreed to serve and hold up the banner for Christ. Rev. Williams served until Mt. Olive called Rev. Marvin T. Smith, a native of Shreveport, Louisiana, who accepted the partnership that was ordered by the Lord in October of 1998.

A profound teacher and preacher, Pastor Marvin T. Smith came to Mt. Olive from Mt. Hopewell Missionary Baptist Church in Nashville, Tennessee. Since coming to Mt. Olive, Pastor Smith was instrumental in establishing several new ministries, including the media ministry and the singles' ministry. Seven new "trained" Deacons have been added to the Deacons Ministry; television and radio broadcasts of preaching and teaching sessions are aired weekly. A mission and vision statement have been developed that encompasses the goals that Mt. Olive seeks to attain in promoting the Kingdom of Christ.

A Tuesday noon prayer and praise service has been initiated under Pastor Smith's administration. Attendance at Sunday School, Sunday morning services, mid-week Bible Study and various other services has increased tremendously. A new members' class, taught by the Pastor, was established to accomodate those new to the congregation to the workings of the Baptist Church, in general, and Mt. Olive, specifically.

Indeed, Mt. Olive has a rich history. A church that continues to grow with the blessings of God!
